Leadership and Influencing Change in Nursing is designed for a single-semester introduction to the professional nurse’s leadership role as both a care provider and a formal leader. An assortment of authors with diverse nursing leadership roles have contributed to this textbook. These diverse voices are focused on providing student nurses with the foundational tools, techniques, and knowledge required to empower them to meet the leadership challenges found within the incessantly changing health care environment.

- No image available1: Introduction
- No image available2: Identifying Your Leadership Strengths and Opportunities for Growth
- No image available3: Diversity in Health Care Organizations
- No image available4: Working with Indigenous Leadership and Indigenous Environments
- No image available5: The Role of Nurse Leaders in the Development of the Canadian Health Care System
- No image available6: Providing Nursing Leadership within the Health Care System
- No image available7: Primary Health Care
- No image available8: Leadership in Quality Management and Safety
- No image available9: Leaders and Evidence-Informed Decision Making
- No image available10: Common Change Theories and Application to Different Nursing Situations
- No image available11: Using Advocacy to Galvanize Ethics into Action
- No image available12: Identifying and Understanding How to Manage Conflict
- No image available13: Responsibility and Authority of Nurse Leaders
- No image available14: Emergency Preparedness and Response
- No image available15: Nursing Leadership through Informatics
16: Regulation, the Law, Labour Relations, and Negotiations

- No image available

17: Emerging Nursing Leadership Issues